

3– Change Agent: In reality, you can't find even one day in your business without changes. A successful change process will require strong change agents, the persons who will initiate and facilitate the whole process. Managers at the same time must ensure that the company will continue the current level of success and prepare to implement change that will bring future success. You must plan and manage the entire change process if you want to bring the desired results.