

In conclusion, a number of important assertions can be made. It has been found that provision of information on economic advancement and development and fostering decision making in these domains can save the economy from a wide range of economic losses. The country needs to pursue economic diversification measures through investments in the food sector and making sure that the investments remain stable. The country also needs to foster working on economic development and to ensure profit making capabilities of firms can be enhanced. Moreover, it is critical to emphasize how the plans and alternatives would be identified.
