

health risk behavior has been used to describe behaviors with potentially negative effects on health, such as substance use, early onset of sexual activity or unsafe sexual practices, risky driving, violent or suicidal behaviors, antisocial behaviors, and disordered eating, among others(