

Decrease in Total Supply: A shortage in total supply leads to economic imbalance due to several factors, including: 1– The production system's inability to meet all needs due to increased demand, which results from using all production elements .