

when sodium acetate reacts with hydrochloric acid, which is a weak acid hydrochloric being a strong acid will displace it from its salt, forming sodium chloride and acetic acid. The reaction of sodium acetate with hydrochloric will provide acetic acid and sodium chloride. The product is almost a mixture of common salt and vinegar.