

The receptor captures the X-rays that pass through the patient's tissues and converts them into a diagnostic image.