

Drugs absorbed passively by either paracellular or transcellular route. This causes a reduced dissolution rate, slow diffusion of dissolved drug through the mucosa. The colonic contents become more viscous with progressive absorption of water as one travels further through the colon.