

1 ml of water and 4 ml of hydrogen peroxide (H_2O_2). This is a negative control experiment where water replaces the catalase enzyme to maintain the same total volume as the experimental group. It serves as a baseline for comparison. The absence of catalase results in no bubble formation (0 mm), confirming the lack of reaction when the enzyme is not present.