

As the Director of the Dairy & Food Polytechnic School, I would like to address you all concerning the history, mission, and values of the DFP. Beginner students will gain an academic foundation in their field before moving on to skill acquisition, providing a complete transition into a career in the dairy and food industry. Our school was founded as a collaborative effort between The General Organization for Technical and Vocational Training Corporation, or TVTC, and the Almarai Company, with help from The Human Resources Development Fund, or HRDF, and the Dutch Company CINOP. Our mission at the DFP is to ensure that every graduate of our program is not only ready for the modern dairy and food production industry workforce, but that they receive a job immediately following graduation.
