

the working principle of a water pump mainly depends upon the positive displacement principle as well as kinetic energy to push the water.