

The poet laments the fact that he has lost his eyesight?before he has completed even half his lifetime in a world which, for him, has now become dark He says: I no longer can use that one most important gift!