The lands are also varied since the North and West are mountainous with heights and difficult constellation of hills which explains why it wasn't inhabited till the late 13th century.The political power is where the economy and population are flourishing; consequently, the Southeastern area has always been the most powerful.Since it is an Island, the British history and civilization has always been linked with the sea.

Summarized by © lakhasly.com