

Interferon (IFN) The clonal selection of antibody-producing B cells and effector T cells provides an exquisitely sensitive means for the infected host to specifically deal with invading microorganisms and viruses, and to eliminate virus-infected – and thus damaged – cells. The ability of cells to produce interferon (IFN) provides another important rapid response.