

The government must make more stringent decisions to reduce tobacco use. The government must provide the necessary support to develop tobacco cessation programs. Establish special and isolated places for those who want to smoke.