

Dan Wieden views the future of advertising as driven by authenticity and creativity, even in the digital age. As platforms evolve, agencies must remain flexible and adaptable. He believes advertising should be human-centered, with storytelling at its core.