

5.3.3. It involves understanding system architecture, identifying integration points, creating test cases, executing tests, and documenting results.