

I was talking to you in a strange way. So that I could succeed in the scientific research I was doing. And you were one of those who tested their actions and reactions.