

a student at the University of Stanford tried to log in to a univers Computer, from his home in Los Angeles. This gave scientists the idea that people couldr communicate through computers, instead of posting letters or talking by telephone.