

Strategic choice perspective It goes one step further by proposing that not only do organizations adapt to a changing environment, but they also have the opportunity and power to reshape their environment