

In conclusion, communication has changed significantly from the past and with the technological inventions that occurred in the 24st century, communicational techniques have developed and are still developing with the purpose to facilitate ways in which people can reach each other.