

Domes have been a prominent feature in architecture for thousands of years, dating back to ancient civilizations such as the Romans and the Byzantines.