

Equipment worn to prevent exposure to industrial dangers that cause significant injury and sickness. It should fit snugly and encourage employees to utilize it. If personal protective equipment is not correctly fitted, it might be the difference between being covered safely and being gravely exposed in danger.