We all have been affected by the current COVID-19 pandemic. Our different social identities and the social groups we belong to determine our inclusion within society and, by extension, our vulnerability to epidemics.