

In a small town, there is a cozy bakery named "Sweet Delights." Every morning, the friendly baker, Mr. Johnson, wakes up early to prepare delicious treats. The aroma of freshly baked bread and sweet pastries fills the air. One day, a curious customer named Sarah decides to visit the bakery. She opens the door, and a bell tinkles, announcing her arrival. Mr. Johnson smiles warmly and greets her, "Good morning! One chocolate croissant coming right up." As he prepares the order, Sarah admires the colorful cupcakes and tasty-looking cookies on display. While waiting, Sarah notices a menu on the wall with various items listed. She decides to ask Mr. Johnson, "What's your most popular pastry?" "I would like a chocolate croissant, please." Mr. Johnson nods and says, "Certainly!" "Do you enjoy baking?"
