

Karam was a very lazy boy and always used to postpone things .Karam promised his father that he would never postpone things .One day he came to know that he had won the first prize in a singing competition that was held the previous month.He was asked to collect the prize the same day.