

As cybersecurity firm CrowdStrike's 2018 Global Threat Report makes clear, attackers have easy access to more tools as the lines between state actors and criminal gangs fade. AI-enabled attack kits are on the way, and we can expect that they will be readily available at commodity prices in the next few years.