

I once met someone at a new workplace who seemed very reserved and unfriendly. Over time, they became one of my closest colleagues, and I regretted judging them so quickly based on their initial behavior. During the first week, they barely spoke to anyone and always appeared distant.