

If the material does not change its composition and is consistent in its structure, it's a pure substance.