

3. By securing their land rights and involving them in conservation efforts, we can protect large areas of forests while preserving local livelihoods and traditions. Supporting Indigenous and Local Communities Indigenous and local communities are often the best stewards of forests.