

Lymphocytes that have successfully passed the preantigen receptor checkpoint go on to rearrange and express genes encoding the second chain of the BCR or TCR. Cells that strongly recognize self antigens will be eliminated or induced to alter their antigen receptor (In case of B cells).