

A machine with mechanical advantage greater than 1 can help to move or lift heavy objects because the output force is greater than the input force.