

food preservation is an action or a method of maintaining food at a desired level of properties of nature for their maximum benefits