

the problem with hydrogen is that is very power consuming to create.the second company is necola that made an attempt to make the technology to heavy wight vehicles , which still didn't find a solution to the energy required to make hydrogen.You sent the creation of hydrogen for now is limited to small industrial solution.which make it very expressive .and not viable to commercial use , especially whe there is a cheaper option even if it's not that effective.