

The strategic decision area of operations management that deals with the design of organizational output is primarily addressed by Amazon through technology.