

In summary, the leadership of Martin Luther King Jr in the Civil Rights Movement is a manifestation of cognitive consistency and balanced reciprocity in Balance Theory. He applied the cognitive dissonance technique as a means that allowed him to uphold the principle of nonviolent and inclusive leadership continuously and led to the eventual realization of social justice