

I've been passionate about competitive gaming since I was young. I started entering tournaments and, though I didn't always win, I consistently improved my skills and speed. By the time I was 17, I was the fastest player in my school, and my burning ambition now is to become the best player in my country.