

In Edgar Allan Poe's short story "The Tell-Tale Heart," the unreliable narrator plays a crucial role in creating suspense and revealing the themes of madness and guilt. The story is told from the perspective of a narrator who insists on their sanity while describing the murder of an old man. This contradiction between the narrator's words and actions makes readers question the reliability of the narrator and adds to the eerie atmosphere of the story.