

molecules of two different substances, while cohesion is the attraction between the molecules or atoms of the same substance.