

The validity of the structural information obtained will depend on the fidelity of reconstitution of the proteolipid in a native conformation under the condition of incorporation into vesicle (exemplary answer): such structural information is valid only when the reconstituted proteolipid has the native conformation