

essential to address the factors contributing to increased stress, as understanding the causes and effects of student stress is crucial for developing effective support systems and promoting a healthier academic environment.