

A low plasticity index indicates a soil with limited plasticity and a narrow range of water content where it behaves plastically. The soil may be prone to cracking and volume changes with fluctuations in moisture content.