

How can you tell the difference between challenging behaviors and emotions that are a normal part of growing up and those that are cause for concern?