

Silent Enemies: Few countries will admit officially that they employ spies. One cold winter morning on December 17th last year, a small blue car stopped on a bridge in a provincial town in northern Germany. However, from time to time, a spy is caught and the public sometimes gets a glimpse of what is going on behind the political scenes. Spies are rarely shot these days. They are frequently tried and imprisoned.