

Demographic segmentation involves categorizing a target market based on various demographic factors such as age, gender, income, education, occupation, and family status.