

In conclusion, the development and implementation of the flame detector using Arduino have been successfully achieved. Firstly, the hardware components were integrated effectively to form a functional flame detection system. By detecting flames promptly, the system contributes to early warning mechanisms, thereby enhancing overall safety measures in diverse settings