

If I were you and learned that Jack started saving early, I would feel both admiration and regret. I would learn about finances from books or workshops, set clear goals, and maintain a consistent spending pattern without raising my standard of living.