

anaphylactic shock is a swift and potent assault on the body, triggered by exposure to an allergen to which an individual is hypersensitive. From common culprits like certain foods, medications, and insect stings, to less known triggers such as latex or exercise, anaphylaxis does not discriminate, affecting individuals of all ages and backgrounds.