

Finally, when the paramedics arrived, the child had regained consciousness and realized what had happened. The paramedics were reassured of his safety and that he was fine now, while they took the necessary measures for the driver who also began to return to reality. He looked around with fear glinting in his eyes.