

An interim statement is a financial report covering a period of less than one year. Interim statements increase communication between companies and the public and provide investors with up-to-date information between annual reporting periods. Interim statements are used to convey the performance of a company before the end of normal full-year financial reporting cycles.