

The honey bee, Apis mellifera, is one of the most important insects beneficial to human beings. Bees collect pollen, a rich source of protein, vitamins, and minerals, used as a dietary supplement and in healthcare products. Bees produce propolis, a resinous substance with antimicrobial and anti-inflammatory properties, used in healthcare and personal care products.